About ASCPT

Advancing the science and practice of clinical pharmacology and translational medicine for the therapeutic benefit of patients and society.

The American Society for Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics (ASCPT) was founded in 1900, and consists of over 2,200 professionals whose primary interest is to advance the science and practice of clinical pharmacology and translational medicine for the therapeutic benefit of patients and society. ASCPT is the largest scientific and professional organization serving the disciplines of Clinical Pharmacology and Translational Medicine.

ASCPT focuses on improving the understanding and use of existing drug therapies and developing safer and more effective treatments for the future. Our memberships' unique combination of scientific and clinical expertise makes them especially qualified to understand the impact of disease on patients, the compelling need for effective drug therapy, and the efforts necessary to meet those needs. Such efforts include research, exchange of scientific information, and awareness of legislative requirements that affect drug development and regulation.

ASCPT Mentoring Program

About the ASCPT Mentoring Program

The purpose of the ASCPT Mentoring Program is to match students/trainees with esteemed leaders in the field of clinical pharmacology and further the professional and personal development of the student/trainee. ASCPT will not define the relationship between the mentor and the mentee; however, guidelines are presented below to help new participants in the program. Mentees must be ASCPT members to participate in the program.

Length of Commitment

The initial introduction will be facilitated by ASCPT and it is anticipated that the pair will participate for at least one year. The mentor and mentee may agree to continue or discontinue meeting at their own discretion after one year.

What's in the ASCPT Mentoring Program For You?

For Mentors

- Contributing your expertise to aid the development of the next generation of scientists.
- Your advice and counsel is valued and treasured.
- Provides an integrated and extremely fulfilling part of your scientific life.

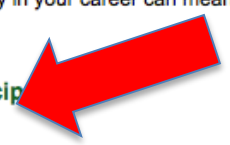

For Mentees

- Being paired with a leader in the field.
- Personal and professional growth.
- Getting expert advice, input, and answers to your career questions.
- Having a good mentor early in your career can mean the difference between success and failure.

Sign up today and participate!
